INTERESTED IN LAW?

Established in 1912, the College of Law at the University of Saskatchewan is the oldest law school in Western Canada, exemplifying a tradition of excellence in teaching, research and innovation.

With a strong history in Indigenous legal education, developing strength in dispute resolution and access to justice, and leading and emerging scholars in the fields of constitutional law, health law, criminal law and commercial law, the college also offers a highly regarded mooting program, joint degree programs and global exchange opportunities.

Why law at uSask?

This nationally recognized law school boasts state-of-the-art teaching and learning facilities that create an extraordinary educational experience. Take your program from world-class faculty who design and deliver innovative courses, preparing you for the exceptional opportunities of the future.

As an alumnus of the College of Law, you will be part of a lifelong community of graduates who have gone on to become, among other things, accomplished academics, learned members of the legal profession across the country, diplomats and political leaders. College of Law alumni have held the positions of prime minister of Canada, governor general of Canada and premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Study at one of Canada’s premier law schools, and become one of approximately 120 graduates to join our alumni family each year.
Distinguished alumni

- Roger Carter, founder and first director, Native Law Centre
- Deborah Chatsis, first female First Nations Ambassador of Canada, first to Vietnam, then to Guatemala and Belize
- John G. Diefenbaker, Canada’s 13th Prime Minister
- Willard Zebedee Estey, Supreme Court of Canada Justice
- Emmett Hall, Supreme Court of Canada Justice, one of founders of Canadian Medicare
- Ramon (Ray) John Hnatyshyn, 24th Governor General of Canada
- William R. McIntyre, Supreme Court of Canada Justice
- Roy Romanow, 12th Premier of Saskatchewan
- Tillie Taylor, Saskatchewan’s first female magistrate, and first chairperson of the Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission
- William I.C. Wuttunee, first Indigenous lawyer to be called to the bar in Western Canada
YOUR CAREER OPTIONS

A Juris Doctor (J.D.) can take you almost anywhere. Of course, there is the traditional route of joining a legal practice, but in today's diverse and fast-paced job market, there are a multitude of less conventional options available to you as well.

Practise law in:
- Private law firms
- Government (federal, provincial or municipal)
- Legal aid clinics
- Corporations

Pursue other roles in:
- Government and politics
- Policy advising
- International relations
- Business
- Entrepreneurship
- Real estate
- Accounting
- Mediation and arbitration
- Counselling
- Law enforcement
- Consulting
- Education
- Journalism
- Legal publishing and research
- Communications
Career support

The career office provides a variety of services and hosts a myriad of events to ensure you find the career that is right for you.

- On-campus interviews
  The career office coordinates interviews of our law students with some out-of-province firms during On-Campus Interviews (OCIs) each year in Saskatoon. These interviews are specifically for recruiting law students for first-year and second-year summer positions.

- Professional development seminars
  Enhance your professional skills and get help with your career planning at one of several seminars organized by the career office throughout the year.
OUR PROGRAMS

JURIS DOCTOR

Our Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree program provides the opportunity to pursue your legal education in a collegial and student-centered environment.

The usual course of study in our college is three full-time years of 30 credit units each. However, the College of Law together with the University of Saskatchewan offer unique program options for students who are interested in following a less-traditional course of study or who require additional flexibility in their academic pursuits.

MASTER OF LAWS

The Master of Laws (LL.M.) program is offered through the College of Law by the College of Graduate Studies and Research at the University of Saskatchewan. The LL.M. program is thesis-based and extends for approximately 12-16 months. It is a full-time residence program offering supervision in a wide range of areas, including Indigenous, commercial, constitutional, criminal and human rights law.

COMBINED DEGREES

The University of Saskatchewan offers a number of options for a combined J.D. degree, where the J.D. program is taken as the second part of the combined degree.

- Bachelor of Arts/Juris Doctor
- Bachelor of Business Administration (University of Regina)/Juris Doctor
- Bachelor of Commerce/Juris Doctor
- Juris Doctor/Masters of Business Administration

The benefit of pursuing a combined J.D. degree is that both programs can be completed in less time than it would take to earn each degree separately.

Students choosing to complete a combined J.D. degree are not guaranteed a place in the College of Law, however. When they become eligible to enter the college, they will compete for placement with all other applicants.
Program of Legal Studies for Native People

The Program of Legal Studies for Native People (PLSNP) is an eight-week summer course offered through the University of Saskatchewan’s Native Law Centre that provides Indigenous students from across Canada an opportunity to study first-year Property Law before beginning law school in the fall. Many students take this course as a condition of their acceptance to law school.
uSask offers an exceptional range of programs and courses offering direct legal skills training combined with the opportunity to put learning into practice.

Certificate in French Common Law
This certificate program gives incoming students with competencies in French the unique opportunity to obtain a Certificate in French Common Law from the University of Ottawa during the completion of their JD degree.

Exchange programs
Study at some of the top law schools in the world in Belgium, the Czech Republic, Finland, Norway, Sweden, or the United Kingdom. In recent years, our students have also gone to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Hungary. Studying law abroad allows you to learn about other legal systems and to gain international experience. It is also an extraordinary opportunity to broaden your personal and professional perspectives.

CLASSIC
The college collaborates closely with CLASSIC (Community Legal Services for Saskatoon Inner City Inc.), a community based legal clinic that provides free legal assistance to low-income clients. CLASSIC gives you a chance to gain practical experience while providing you with new insights into the social reality of law.

Access to Justice
The college offers a three-credit seminar class called Access to Justice. Students enrolled in this course have the opportunity to observe and interact with lawyers during a placement at one of many participating courts and tribunals in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Saskatchewan Law Review
The Saskatchewan Law Review is a journal published at the College of Law and provides a range of opportunities for legal scholars and experts interested in publishing their work. As a student, you can submit work for review or serve on the editorial board.

Rural trips
Each year, law students have the opportunity to learn about practising law in smaller communities and rural areas through firm tours and meetings with legal practitioners.

McKercher LLP Lecture Series
The McKercher LLP Lecture Series brings leading scholars, business leaders and legal experts to the college to explore a wide range of topics, stimulate debate and enrich understanding. High profile speakers engage with the student body and the public.
Mooting

Our Mooting program is highly regarded. As a part of the first-year curriculum, you will participate in an intensive dispute-resolution program, which allows you to research and present your position before a panel of judges. Our upper-year moot teams have achieved a high degree of success at national and international moot competitions.
Approximately 126 students are accepted into the College of Law’s first-year program at the University of Saskatchewan each academic year. However, the number of applications we receive greatly exceeds the number of places available.

Admission to the College of Law is at the discretion of the college’s Admissions Committee, and is determined based on merit, taking into account your academic record, your Law School Admission Test (LSAT) score, and any special circumstances the committee deems relevant.

Past experience indicates that, as a general rule, successful applicants have a grade point average of 3.7 or better on a 4.3 point scale (approximately a B+ or 80% average) in pre-law studies, and score 159 or higher on the LSAT.

Admission qualifications

The minimum requirement to enter our J.D. program is two full years (60 credit units) of academic work at a recognized university, or equivalent. There are no recommended pre-law programs or classes.

Applicants must also submit a Law School Admissions Test (LSAT) score and a personal statement (maximum of 500 words).

Scholarships

The College of Law offers various student awards and funding including a number of entrance and upper-year scholarships, course prizes and graduate student scholarships. Financial assistance for qualified students is also available in the form of bursaries.

All entering law students are automatically considered for most entrance scholarships upon acceptance.
First class amenities

The Law Building expansion in 2008 was the first project at the U of S to meet Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) standards and allows for 57 per cent lower use of overall energy.

The Dentons Canada LLP Student Lounge was built as part of the Law Building expansion to provide our students with a wide-open area for networking, receptions and the occasional game of foosball.

The Native Law Centre was founded in 1975 to facilitate access to legal education for Indigenous peoples and provides expertise on issues related to Indigenous peoples and the law.
ADMISSIONS.
USASK.CA